Third fire destroys HNC class building

Arson suspected in first two blazes

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A portable classroom building at Hancock North Central School near the White Cypress Community was completely destroyed Monday morning by a third fire within four days in the same structure.

Jay Marsh, Hancock County fire marshal, said Monday morning at the fire scene that arson is suspected in two Friday fires which heavily damaged the building, but the Monday fire resulted from rekindling of smoldering debris.

Donald Hillman, HNC High School principal, said Monday morning that the school office received a fire threat telephone call about 30 minutes before the first fire late Friday afternoon.

But he added that the school frequently receives such calls.

Bill Calahan, pump operator of the Kiln Volunteer Fire Department, said Monday the department was summoned to the HNC blazes at 5:30 p.m. and 9:15 p.m. Friday, and 9:30 a.m. Monday.

The portable building site is on the northwest side of the elementary school campus.

Marsh said arson is suspected in the two Friday fires because they evidently started in different areas of the building.

He explained the first fire began in an unused restroom at the southwest corner of the building and the second fire started in the northwest corner.

The fire marshal said Hillman noticed Saturday and Sunday that the fire damaged building was still smoldering.

Marsh said he is conducting interviews in his investigation as a prelude to an in-depth probe by the state fire marshal who has been delayed in investigating the Hancock fire due to a heavy caseload.

Terrell Randolph, County School District superintendent of education, said Wednesday that he did not yet have a dollar estimate on the loss resulting from the fire.

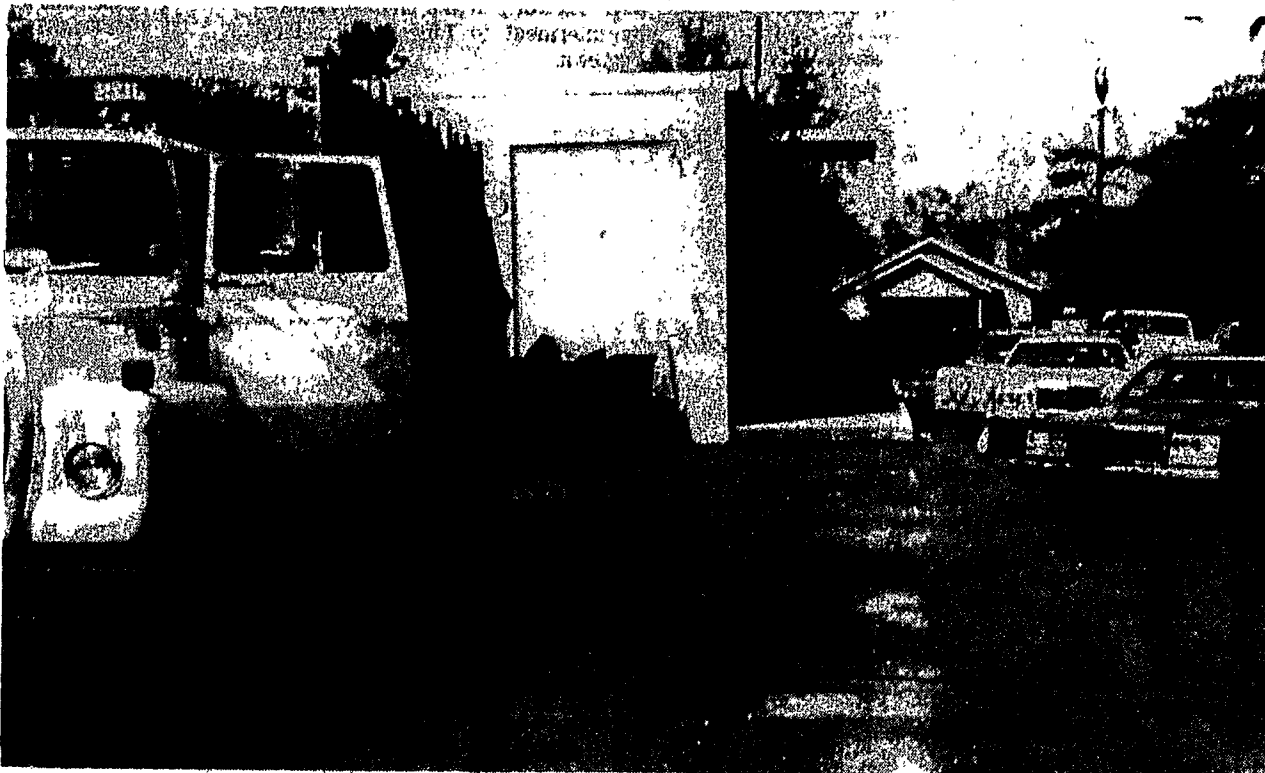

He explained the building housed an HNC Junior High School study hall classroom and was utilized to store athletic equipment.

The superintendent said he did not yet know what was salvaged from the building after the first fire.

Randolph reported the insurers of the building, Nationwide Insurance, have offered the district a choice of replacement of the building or will pay the cash value of the building including cost of delivery and set up of such a building plus the price for clearing debris of the destroyed structure.

He explained that the cash value would be based on one-half the value of a new portable classroom building.

The County School Board will decide which option they will exercise, Randolph added.

Longo urges letter writing to get sewerage funds

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Mayor John Longo at a Tuesday night Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District public hearing told local residents to write their congressmen urging them to help obtain federal funds for an upland irrigation sewage disposal system.

The vast majority of some 40 citizens speaking at the public hearing, regarding long-range plans for Hancock County sewage treatment, objected to a prime alternative which would pump Bay St. Louis and Waveland sewage effluent directly into Jourdan River.

Most of the citizens opposing the Jourdan alternative, endorsed the upland spray irrigation method for sewage disposal.

More than 150 people attended the three-hour hearing at American Legion Post No. 77 in Waveland.

Longo also serves as chairman of the wastewater district Board of Directors and chaired the Tuesday night hearing.

Several times during the sometimes heated meeting, Longo asked that citizens write their congressmen to urge them to seek an estimated $8,551,880 for the local irrigation system.

Freak accident fatal to Bay St. Louis man

By EDGAR H. PEREZ

A 61-year-old Gulf Coast Waste Disposal Company truck driver was crushed to death by a dumpster in a freak accident at Marketown in Bay St. Louis Wednesday morning.

Robert Lee Weaver of 500 St. John St., well-known for the uniform of a starched white shirt and green trousers he wore for some 15 years as an employee of the company, was pronounced dead at Hancock General Hospital at 10:15 a.m.

Investigating officers Troy Jackson and Capt. Robert Butler of the Bay St. Louis Police Department said Weaver and fellow employee Jefferey E. Shultz of Bay St. Louis were both out of their garbage truck attempting to empty a dumpster behind Ekerd's Drugs in the shopping center.

Weaver, driver of the truck, had apparently engaged the truck brakes but

Council denies zoning change

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

Residents in attendance had time only to applaud—or sigh—at Tuesday's special meeting of the Bay St. Louis City Council where council members naysayed construction of an apartment complex on Washington Street.

"Is that all?" someone asked as the meeting adjourned about five minutes after it began.

About 20 persons, some protesting and some supporting a zoning change to allow construction, appeared for the 6 p.m. meeting and waited patiently until about 6:30 when Council President Wilmer Seymour called the meeting to order.

Several councilmen arrived late, and twice Seymour told the gathering that he would not begin until all members were present.

After the meeting officially began, City Clerk Edward Favre read the minutes of the March 8 Bay Planning and Zoning Commission meeting when

Neglected animals rescued in coop operation

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A cooperative effort by local government officials, concerned members of the Bay-Waveland Humane Society and local residents resulted in the rescue of two neglected animals discovered in the Shoreline Park area.

Over the weekend, humane society members were informed by Shoreline residents of a pony and a dog tied to posts and completely exposed to the elements on a vacant lot there for more than one week.

Residents also contacted "The Sea Coast Echo" Monday morning about the situation, but none of the neighbors knew who owned the animals.

They reported the animals were tied to posts without any sort of cover for more than one week. The residents said they were bringing food and water to the animals because the pets appeared to be starving.

One neighbor reported that the animals had been brought there in the middle of the night and about twice had seen people there in the late evening.

Another neighbor feared the relatively high vernal equinox tides might flood the lot and drown the animals.

Later that morning, "The Sea Coast Echo" went to the dead end of an unnamed street near the intersection of Tennessee and Kansas Streets and found the animals on the treeless low-lying waterfront lot.

The fairly large dog appeared skinny with its ribs showing and was hyperactive apparently from being confined to a post with a heavy chain about three feet long which was attached around the animal's neck with a nut and bolt.

The gentle tan pony was attached to another post with a rope about 15 feet long which had become tangled in bushes and twisted around nearby posts—restricting the animal to graze in about a 10-foot area which it had already stripped of grass.

At about 1 p.m. Monday, Rosemary Malandra of the humane society obtained legal documents at the Hancock Courthouse in Bay St. Louis from Justice Court Judge Bruce Necaise of the East District which would allow county officials to enter the property to rescue the animals.

Then Mary Beihl, Hancock Sheriff's Department secretary, with the court order in hand, notified County Ranger Lesli Dedeaux to pick up the pony.

Since the ranger's slot is a part-time position Dedeaux was not available until 5:30 p.m. after he ended his regular work day, Beihl said.

Ardley Hanemann of the humane society notified Waveland Animal Warden Joe Schultz who agreed to pick up the dog even though it was outside the city limits and on his own time.

At about 5:30 p.m. Monday, Deputy Glen Strong of the sheriff's department escorted the warden and ranger to the vacant Shoreline lot where the officials took custody of the animals.

The dog is now housed at the Hancock County Animal Shelter on Gulfside Drive in Waveland and the pony is under the care of the ranger in Kiln.

Emile Malandra of the humane society said Monday that the organization or county may take legal action against the animal owners if they are ever discovered.

Don't let grocery store feast on your wallet

By Ann O. Rushing
Extension Marketing
Specialist

You check your watch. It's later than you thought! You race into the supermarket. Less than 20 minutes to get all of your shopping done for the week.

You grab a cart and rush to the produce department. "What do I need?" You wonder staring at the bins of bright fruits and vegetables. "One of this and a couple of that," you decide, tossing lettuce and tomatoes into the cart.

"I think I need peanut butter," you say, grabbing your favorite brand. "All of this food makes me hungry. That's what I want!" You smile, dropping a big bag of Snackers into the cart.

Up and down the aisles you whizz, grabbing a jar here and a box there, until the cart is packed with groceries.

You push the cart into the checkout counter and watch the groceries tumble down the conveyor belt as the clerk adds the prices. "Ice cream, $2.89," she called, "frozen pizza, $3.65, lettuce, $1."

"What?" you ask. "How can one head of lettuce cost so much?" "It's out of season. Do you still want it?"

You nod, and she continued, "Peanut butter, $1.89, bread, $1.09."

"Oh, no!" You think. "I forgot to buy hamburger meat. And I forgot potatoes and dish soap!" But you're too embarrassed to admit it. "I'll get them at the convenience store."

"Your total is $43.64," the clerk smiled, handing you the receipt.

Your mouth drops open. "How could I spent so much money on so few things?"

Groceries take a big bite out of the average American's take home pay. The United States Department of Agriculture estimates that most of us spend nearly 20 percent of our paychecks at the grocery store. (The higher one's income, the lower the percentage; the lower one's income, the higher the percentage.)

Eating is necessity. For that reason everyone spends money at the grocery store. But the amount you spend and the amount you are able to save are entirely up to you.

After all, groceries don't leap from the shelves into the cart. You have to put them there.

Wise shoppers know how to pare down their food budgets and save hundreds of dollars each year on groceries. Let's take a look at some of the ways you can save money and avoid "checkout shock" at the cash register.

—Set a goal.

How much can you afford to spend on groceries? Divide your earnings by 5, and that will give you the amount that equals 20 percent of your income. Do you spend that amount or less on food? Do you spend more?

What do you spend your food dollars for? Take a look at several cash register receipts. How many of the items fall into the "Basic Four Food Groups": dairy; meat, fish, and poultry; bread and cereal; and fruits and vegetables? How much are you spending for snack-food items? Do you catch yourself having to shop more than once a week because you don't have all of the ingredients for meals that you've planned?

Figure out how much you normally spend for the "Basic Four" foods. Add the amount you usually spend on paper and cleaning supplies to your adjusted "Basic Four" and snack total, and you have a rough estimate of your current food budget.

HANCOCK GENERAL HOSPITAL

its Medical Staff
Members

This is a time of great change in the health care profession. But there is one thing which hasn't changed and that is the rare collection of physicians who devote their lives to caring for others.

It is for these reasons and many more that March 30th, Doctors' Day, is set aside to honor Hancock General Hospital physicians.

Since the first Doctors' Day was initiated by the Barrow County (Georgia) Woman's Auxiliary in 1933, many communities throughout the nation have adopted this date to honor local physicians.

March 30th was chosen because one of the most significant medical discoveries occurred in 1842. On this day, Crawford W. Long, M.D., of Jefferson, Georgia, performed a memorable operation. As the first to use ether for painless surgery, Dr. Long paved the way for doctors to perfect many new surgical techniques in the treatment and management of disease.

Tomorrow, March 30th, Hancock General will be offering physicians a red carnation, the official flower of Doctor's Day.

A special thanks to all physicians!

Republican county convention to follow precinct caucuses

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT
Hancock County Republicans will conduct precinct caucuses Saturday morning to elect delegates to their county convention which will follow Saturday afternoon.

The precinct caucuses will be held at all regular polling places throughout the county beginning at 10 a.m.

The county convention will be held at 3 p.m. at the Hancock County Courthouse.

According to Republican County Chairman James Rester, participants in precinct caucuses will elect one delegate from each precinct to attend the county convention.

At the county convention, he said, delegates will be elected for the state Republican convention in Jackson on April 14, where Hancock County will have two and one-half votes.

Three delegates and three alternates will be selected Saturday to represent those votes, Rester said.

At the state convention, delegates will be elected to the Republican National Convention in Dallas in August, and state executive committee members will be elected.

Rester said a state Republican platform will also be adopted at the state convention.

"We have an active platform committee," Rester said, "which has already held meetings around the state for input from concerned citizens."

Rester, Farm Bureau Insurance agency manager in Kiln, is a member of the platform committee's agriculture subcommittee.

Delegates to Saturday's county convention will elect members of the Republican county executive committee to serve four-year terms.

The executive committee, Rester said, will then choose from its members a county chairman, vice-chairman and secretary-treasurer.

"At the precinct caucuses participants will immediately elect a chairman and secretary, then proceed to elect one delegate and one alternate for the county convention," he said.

State GOP Chairman Ebbie Spivey has urged all conservative voters in Mississippi to participate in the Republican caucuses.

"Unlike our Democrat counterparts," Spivey said, "we do not require voters to swear out an oath of loyalty to the party."

"We welcome all conservative-minded people to join us."

Spivey noted that voters should not be satisfied with knowing that President Reagan will be unopposed for his party's nomination.

"President Reagan needs a strong show of support in our precinct caucuses."

"The increased attention that Walter Mondale, Jesse Jackson and Gary Hart have received in recent weeks does not accurately reflect their unacceptability to conservative voters in Mississippi."

"Too much is at stake in a Presidential election year to wait until summer to begin campaigning in earnest," Spivey said, adding that everyone who is not satisfied with the choice of three liberals for the Democrat nomination is welcome to participate in the Republican caucuses.

Trustees vote to upgrade school computer system

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT
The Hancock County School District board of trustees plans to upgrade the district's computer capability.

The trustees voted Monday to advertise for bids to purchase two new computer terminals and purchase additional software.

John W. Logan, president of Data Processing Consultants of Hattiesburg, Inc., distributor for Wang computers, presented a three-phase proposal to the board members to upgrade the computer operation that was put into operation in the district about seven years ago and is used for bookkeeping operations.

Phase I of Logan's proposal would double the capacity of the disk drive in the district's central office to 10 million characters, and would also upgrade the processor.

New software would be added to allow the computer to handle investment management, bank reconciliation, transportation, inventory and personnel.

Phase II would add a second terminal in the central office to handle Section 16 lands, word processing and budget planning.

Phase III would install a computer terminal in the Hancock North Central office with a mark sense reader to allow computerization of student pre-registration, registration, grade processing, attendance reporting and test scoring.

Logan said the computer upgrading will cut staff workload so they can devote more time to school management.

"The stand-alone computer (at Hancock North Central) can process each school's work, plus transfer information by phone over to the county administration system," he said in his written proposal to the trustees.

Logan said the confidentiality of the information contained in the computer system would be protected.

"A student at Hancock North Central could not call in and gain access to information at the central office," he assured the trustees.

Logan said his company has been in the school business about 12 years developing software for school systems.

In other business the trustees:
—Heard a final report on emergency repair of boilers at Hancock North Central, Charles B. Murphy Elementary and Gulfview Elementary at a total cost of $3,965 which was reimbursed in full by the district's insurance company;

—Took under advisement a proposed 1984-85 school calendar;

—Authorized Superintendent Terrell Randolph to investigate the cost of having an independent appraiser appraise all school district facilities, contents and equipment;

—Approved the employment of Mrs. Jonnie Roche as substitute teacher at Hancock North Central for the remainder of the 1983-84 school year;

—Approved the use of the Charles B. Murphy gymnasium by United Methodist Church on April 22 for community services;

—Approved attendance by James

Pair at a Hattiesburg regional training session for staff development, and by W.H. Haddock at a Mississippi Attendance Center principals' meeting in Jackson;

Approved attendance by Randolph and principals at a Jackson Software Fair sponsored by the State Department of Education, by Randolph and cafeteria supervisors at a Jackson meeting designed to involve students in cafeteria activities, and by Randolph and board members at a pupil transportation conference in Long Beach; and —Approved attendance by Randolph at Mississippi Economic Council's annual meeting in Jackson and at the 1984 Mississippi Association of School Superintendents' summer conference in Biloxi.

NERVOUSNESS

There is a state of affairs that runs your body very quickly of its vitality and energy. You become easily irritated, shaky and even dizzy, tense and tight in the neck, making your life miserable. The symptoms of nervousness are numerous, and there is no definite medical cause at this time. However, Chiropractic adjustments have been found to relieve every case of nervousness and directly related to it. Chiropractic adjustments are designed to locate and remove nerve irritations and interference along the course of the spinal cord and nerves. Once the cause has been found, then Chiropractic adjustments will remove the nerve interference and the symptoms will subside as the nervous system functions normally again and good health is once again restored to the individual. This is the way to live.

It is amazing how many azaleas are now blooming after the severe winter.

When the azaleas lost all of their leaves we were afraid there would be no flowers this year.

It is good the trees seem to have survived and the flowers are really helping in making our area a lot brighter.

We understand one of our high school classmates was on a National Television 'Talk Show' on Tuesday of this week.

Dr. Donald Levy, formerly of Bay St. Louis and now of Milwaukee, was on the Today Show.

He is a renowned plastic surgeon and was discussing how advertising plays an important role in his profession.

Donald was in our area several months ago, as his mother still resides in Bay St. Louis and stopped in for a visit.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

If it concerns you, it concerns us

Although help is hard to find on weekends, much improvement has been made in animal control.

March 26, 1984
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Editor,

Man's best friend, a horse and dog out here in Shoreline Park have had the most cruel treatment I have seen done to animals in a long time.

This horse and dog were chained with no food or water for a week.

I learned about this on Saturday, Mar. 24, and as has happened in the past, I could find no one to help me about these animals.

I called the Sheriff's Office and was given a number. It was the Waveland Police Department who gave me the Humane Society number which was a recording.

Realizing nothing could be done on the weekend, some of us got together and tried to feed and help the horse and dog.

The horse was tangled up in the chain. Both needed a drink of water badly.

These poor animals were exposed to the heat of day, coolness of night, the mosquitoes, rats and worst of all, if high water that sometimes will come up quickly, it could have drowned the pair.

When I was able to find members of the Humane Society—incidentally they are dedicated volunteers to the welfare of animals—everyone did their part to help the horse and dog.

I did call someone at your Sea Coast Echo to ask for help and with everyone being concerned this horse and dog are free from those cruel chains and being taken care of now.

I would like to find whoever brought these animals out here to Shoreline Park and chain them for a week without food and water and exposed to the elements.

We are out in the county, and it seems when an animal problem comes up everyone passes it on to someone else.

I have a very beautiful dog I rescued eight years ago. Much has changed since I asked for help then.

Each and everyone dedicated to the welfare of animals through the years, to get better treatment for man's best friend, has gained some ground as there is an animal shelter in Waveland. Money is badly needed to continue helping the animals.

There should be a 24-hour phone number that could be reached for someone to help us with an animal problem or give us some idea how to go about getting our animal problem handled, not just a recording that one has to wait at home hoping someone will answer our call.

Our community is growing and there will be always a need for better handling of an animal problem.

Just why because we are out in the county, not in Bay St. Louis and Waveland, do we have so much trouble with our animal problems?

Dogs, cats, name it, ends up in Shoreline Park to starve or drown unless some of us come to the rescue.

I have three dogs myself and I can not take in more, as much as I would like to.

I want to thank everyone of you dedicated Humane Society members, Shoreline Park neighbors and the people of The Sea Coast Echo who got involved in the rescue of the horse and dog from cruel man.

There are laws, and they will be enforced if it happens here in Shoreline Park.

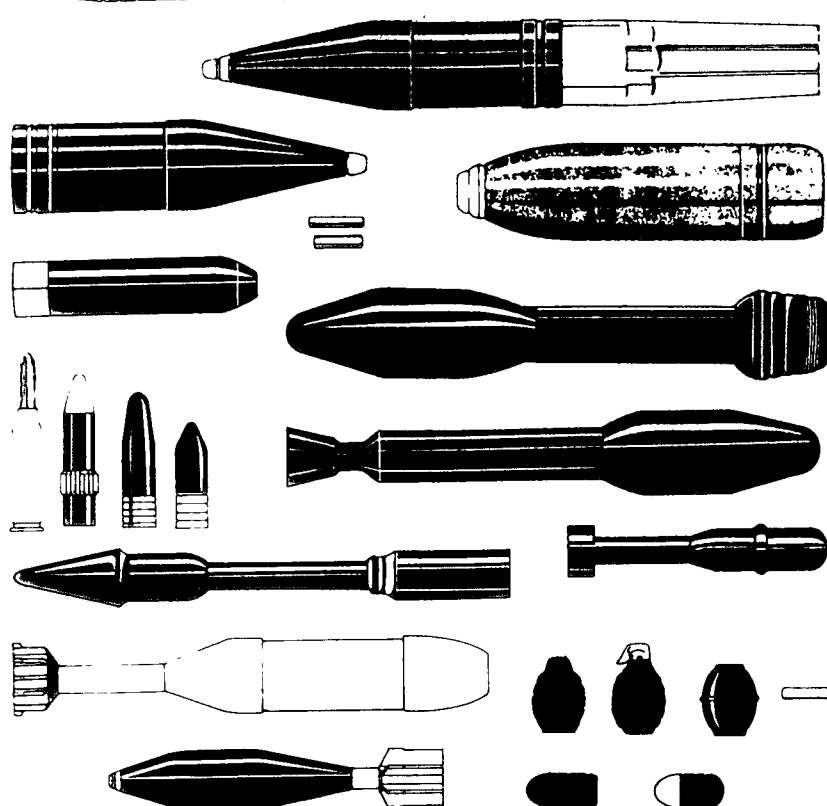

Sincerely,
Louisa M. Brew

IN CONGRESS

By Cong. Trent Lott

LEGISLATIVE UPDATE

The pace of the legislative flow in Congress was brisk last week with a variety of issues being considered. Here are some of the major ones.

School Prayer

The Senate failed on a 56-to-44 vote to pass the proposed school prayer amendment by the necessary margin. Two-thirds, or 67 votes, were required.

As I explained in a recent newspaper column, allowing prayer in public schools is neither a political nor an educational issue for me, it's a moral one. It is entirely proper that school kids who want to pray be given the opportunity.

We're still trying in the House to get enough Members to sign a discharge petition which would force a vote on the issue. After the defeat in the Senate, however, it looks like our efforts will be uphill this year.

There is another issue which I also hope moves soon in the House. We know it informally as the "equal access" bill. It would simply require that if a school makes facilities available for such groups as the Science Club to meet after school hours, the school must also make facilities available for a Bible study group.

This bill, which I introduced, requires that equal access be granted to religious-oriented groups, just the same as non-religious groups.

Social Security Disability

The reform package on social security disability insurance was moved by the Rules Committee to the House floor for action.

Over the last few years, there has been an on-going process to review this program's rolls. We all understand the need for periodic reviews because in some cases the disabled individual's medical condition improves.

What happened, though, was that the review process got out of hand. Widely varied approaches were used from state to state on how reviews were handled and, as a result, many people saw their benefits terminated even in some cases where they should have continued.

The new legislation seeks to place in the law a guarantee that benefits will not be terminated because of a careless or arbitrary decision by state or federal governments. It also makes sure that benefits will continue while a case is on appeal, at least through the administrative law judge level.

Deficit Downpayment

We're also working on a plan to make a downpayment on the federal deficit. Two plans actually have been put forward, one by the President and congressional Republicans and the other by congressional Democrats.

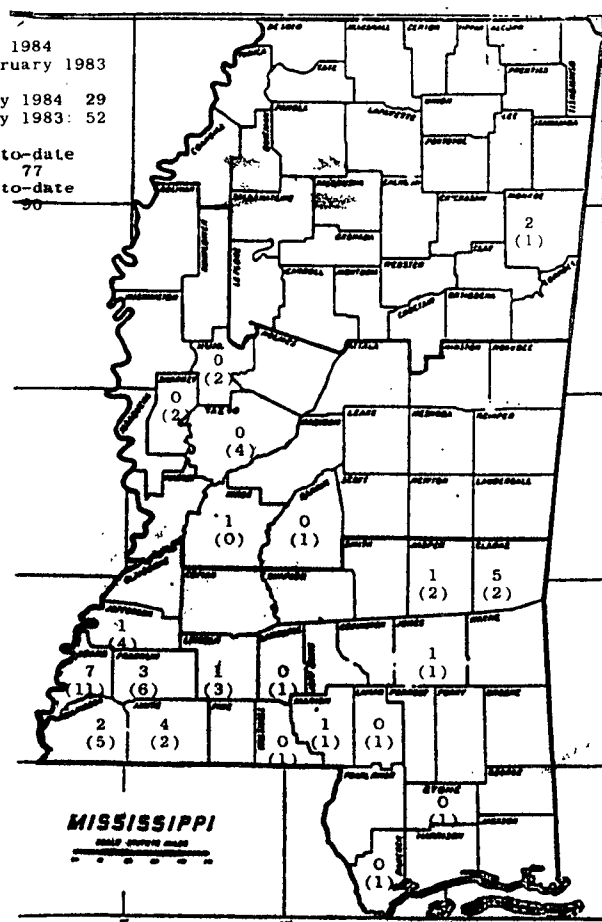

They call for making a downpayment of between $150 billion and $185 billion on the deficit over the next three years, but suggest different ways of going about it.

We are making progress on reducing the deficit and while there are still too many naysayers in Washington and on Wall Street, I think we may actually confront the deficit issue this year and vote to reduce it.

Preventing Accidents in Later Life

Accidents seldom "just happen," and many accidents can be prevented. Attention to safety is especially important for older persons, because accidental injuries happen more often and are usually more serious in later life.

Several factors make older people prone to accidents. Poor eyesight and hearing can decrease one's awareness of hazards. Arthritis, neurological diseases and impaired coordination and balance can make older people unsteady.

Often, mishaps are expressions of mental depression or of poor physical conditioning. With age, many women develop thin, brittle bones, which may cause seemingly minor falls to result in serious fractures of the hip, wrist and other bones.

Increasingly, older adults are protecting their health by exercising, eating a balanced diet, reducing their alcohol consumption and not smoking.

And I applaud their initiative; they're definitely on the right track. But most people who change their life styles for the better give little thought to a health-promotion measure that is perhaps the easiest and most effective of all. They forget to cultivate good safety habits.

Falls are the most common cause of fatal injury in the aged. Here are some steps that you can take to reduce the risk of falls in your home:

★ Light all stairways and provide light switches at both the top and bottom landings.

★ Be sure both sides of stairways have sturdy handrails.

★ Tack down carpeting on stairs and use nonskid treads on uncarpeted stairs.

★ Remove throw rugs that tend to slide.

★ Arrange furniture and other objects so that they are not obstacles.

★ Install grab bars on bathroom walls and nonskid mats or strips in the bathtub.

★ Keep outdoor steps and walkways in good repair and free of ice in the winter.

Burns are especially disabling to older people, who do not recover as quickly as younger people from this kind of injury. By being safety conscious, however, you can do a great deal to protect yourself from a burn injury. For example:

★ Never smoke in bed or when you are drowsy. (The best advice, I should add, is to give up smoking entirely.)

★ When cooking, don't wear loosely fitting flammable clothing. Bathrobes, nightgowns and pajamas catch fire easily.

★ Set water heater thermostats at moderate levels, so that hot water does not scald the skin.

★ Decide which emergency exits you would use in case of a fire. Plan your escape route, in other words.

Can you think of any other fire safety measures? Here's a good one. Install a good lock on your front door, just one good lock that can be opened from the inside quickly. Many older people trap themselves behind multiple door locks that will be difficult to open during an emergency.

Motor vehicle accidents are the most common cause of accidental death in the 65-to-74 age group and the second most common cause (next to falls) among all older persons.

Your ability to drive safely may be impaired by such age-related changes as increased sensitivity to glare, poorer adaptation to the dark, diminished coordination and slower reaction time. You can compensate for these changes by driving less often and by driving less at night, during rush hours and in the winter.

If you ride on public transportation, remain alert and brace yourself when the vehicle is slowing down or turning. Have your fare ready when you board, so that you don't have to fumble for change and risk losing your balance.

Similarly, don't carry too many packages; leave one hand free to grasp railings. And when you leave the vehicle, watch for slippery pavement and other curb-side hazards.

Give yourself extra time to cross the streets safely, especially in bad weather. At night, it's wise to wear light-colored or fluorescent clothing and to carry a flashlight.

Many of the health problems common to older people are difficult to treat and cure, but attention to safety, especially in later life, can help you avoid a lot of those problems and keep you on the go. So, give some serious thought to accident prevention before a serious accident has a chance to occur. Good safety habits and good health go hand-in-hand.

Arson penalties severe for setting school fire

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

In Mississippi it is a felony for persons who set fire to state-supported schools to fail to report the fire even if it is accidental.

State statutes provide that persons who set fire to state-supported schools or aid in the burning of state-supported schools are guilty of arson in the first degree.

The statutes also provide that "Any person observing or witnessing the destruction by fire of any state-supported school building, whether occupied or vacant, which fire was the result of his or her act of an accidental nature, and who willfully fails to sound the fire alarm or report such fire to the local fire department or other local authorities, shall be guilty of a felony and, upon conviction therefor, shall be sentenced to the penitentiary for not less than two nor more than ten years."

The same section of the statutes provide that juveniles who are found guilty of arson in the first degree shall not be eligible for probation until they have served at least six months in a state reform school.

Ed Friloux, Diamondhead Fire Department administrator and member of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department Arson Investigation Squad, noted that all fires, whether accidental or caused by arson, at state-supported institutions such as schools, hospitals, jails or nursing homes must be reported to the state fire marshal's office.

"Usually this is done by local fire authorities," he said.

To help fight arson, Friloux said rewards of up to $1,000 are paid by the state for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons who set structural fires.

"An the state forestry association pays up to $500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons who set fire to woodlands."

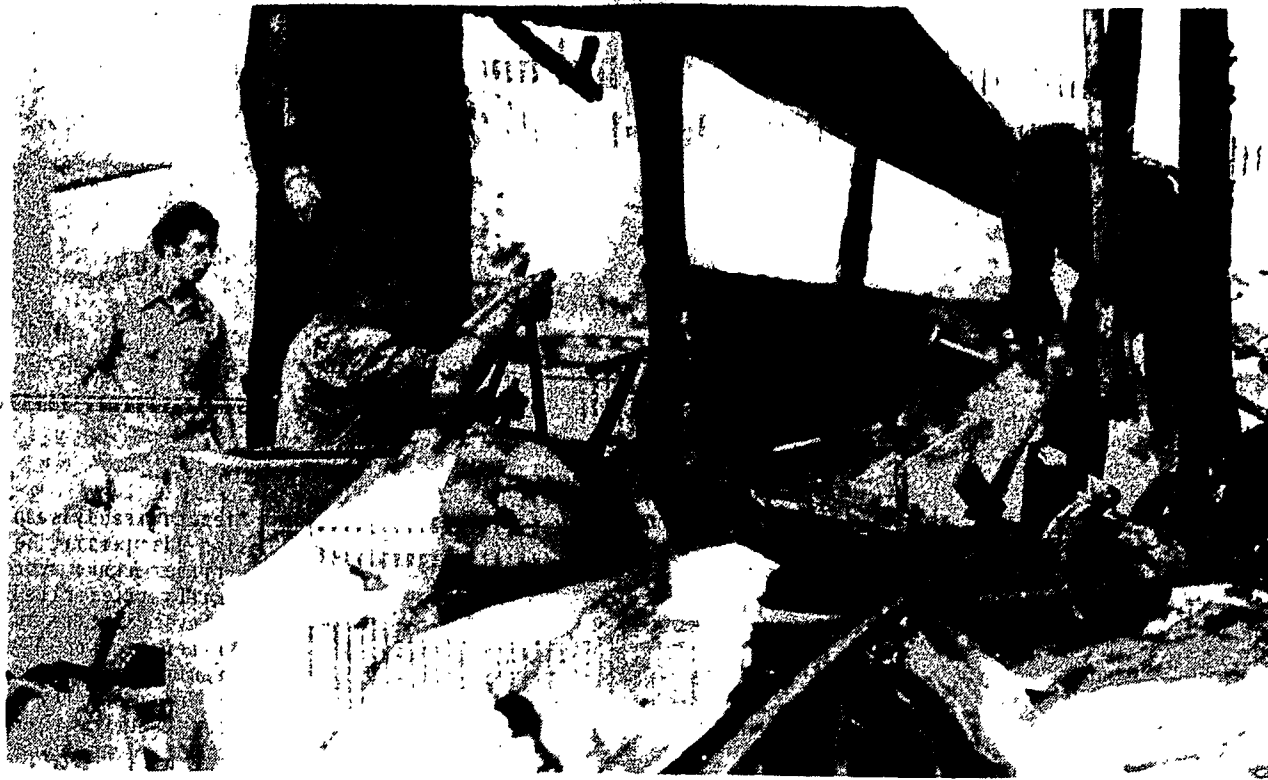

The amount of individual rewards, Friloux said, depends upon the severity of the fire.

"The best part about this—particularly with structural fires—is that the information will be kept confidential."

Friloux said information given to local fire authorities is passed on to the state fire marshal's office, "but confidentiality of the informant's name is maintained."

"We've declared war on arson in Hancock County," Friloux said, noting that both Bay St. Louis and Waveland now have teams of trained fire investigators who work cooperatively with the county arson squad and the state fire marshal's office.

"Every structural fire in the county is being investigated by any number of agencies," he said, "to ensure that we reduce the crime of arson as well as develop better fire safety procedures."

Letters

Ethel Schott, wastewater district administrator, opened the hearing by reading a statement which basically says the district will build a spray irrigation system if 85 percent matching funds are available through the Environmental Protection Agency and if not "will have to go with a less costly alternative."

She said the Jourdan outfall lines alternative, estimated to cost $2,956,845 and funded with 55 percent matching funds, is the "most cost effective."

But about midway through the hearing, Dr. James Bordelon asked Longo how could the district apply for the federal funds if it was not yet totally committed to one alternative, based on recent reports that State Bureau of Pollution Control officials need a firm pledge.

Longo replied, "Since our last public hearing we've been in contact with state and federal authorities to try to get it."

Bordelon reported, "I wrote to Congressman Trent Lott and as of February of this year he knew nothing of the problem."

Longo replied, "He's (Lott) not involved in every local sewerage problem. He will do what he can for the Fifth Congressional District. He's not involved in every community project."

"Trent and I will get together and we'll talk a little business," Longo said. Schott reported that Lewis-Eaton Partnership, the wastewater district engineering firm, and the BPC both endorse the spray irrigation as the preferred method out of six alternatives.

Mike Anthony—representing Jourdan River Estates; the Garden Island, Jourdan River Isles and Shoreline Park Civic Associations; and Dr. Edwin Cakes, an oyster biologist of the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs—opposed any type of sewage discharge into any local waterways.

"If we allow discharge into the Jourdan River or its tributaries, our water quality will never improve, it will only continue to degrade itself," Anthony stated.

A statement Anthony read from Cakes says, "We as citizens must pay the required cost for treating our own wastes. We cannot afford not to if we are to continue to have oysters to eat and clean waters to recreate on and in."

Cakes writes that the Jourdan discharge would pollute Mississippi Sound oyster beds and endanger the health of humans and wildlife utilizing the river.

He notes that the Federal Water

Pollution Control Act of 1972 established a national goal of eliminating all pollutant discharges into United States waterways by 1985.

"By going to land treatment now, rather than later, the district will be meeting these requirements in a timely and efficient manner and will not have to go back to the drawing boards later in order to repeat the entire planning and hearing process," Cakes reports.

Dr. Peter Stocks of Jourdan River Estates and chairman of microbiology at the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg reported his water sample tests at the present Edwards Bayou discharge point for the City of Waveland sewage treatment plant for the last four months indicate the effluent is not meeting EPA bacteria level standards.

He said the high effluent bacteria level could cause diseases such as polio, hepatitis and typhoid fever.

Schott disagreed with Stocks' findings and reported her samples are taken directly from the effluent pipe at the plant.

Stocks said his samples from Edwards were "already after dilution" of the Waveland effluent.

Schott replied, "We're not responsible after the effluent leaves the plant."

That comment drew groans from the audience.

She added that the high bacteria level could have resulted from septic tanks overflowing into the bayou which brought more jeers from the audience.

Mike Smith of Bay St. Louis and a consulting engineer for the Hancock Port and Harbor Commission which operates Stennis International Airport, regarding the district's efforts toward a spray irrigation system, stated, "I see this held out as a panacea."

He said the prime spray irrigation site, west of the airport, is a swampy area about six feet above sea level which probably would not absorb fluids as required for such a system.

Mike Reynolds of Jourdan River Estates reported that Jourdan River seaward from the Hwy. 603 bridge is now classified by the state and federal government as a recreational river.

"Mississippi won't allow sewage discharges into recreational rivers for obvious reasons," he stated.

He also cited that no environmental impact study regarding the Jourdan outfalls has been made, the clean water act has not been addressed by the district, and river flora and tidal action have not been considered.

"I call it taxation without representation. Automatically the two cities outnumber the county 2-1 on the wastewater board despite the unincorporated areas having population equal to the two cities combined," he stated.

The wastewater board consists of Longo, Mayor Larry Bennett of Bay St. Louis and A.A. Kellar, County Board of Supervisors president.

Ronald Ferrell of Waveland and the Gulf Fishermen's Association said the organization opposes the effluent discharge in any streams because this will result in the destruction of Mississippi's remaining unpolluted oyster reefs.

But Mrs. Lee Ferrell of Waveland and mother of the fishermen's representative said she opposed any alternative that would increase monthly sewage rates dramatically.

Longo agreed with the woman and regarding the monthly increases for the spray irrigation method stated, "This is frankly what I'm against."

He said the two cities are the only local entities footing the bill for the sewerage improvements which would benefit the entire county.

Artificial sweeteners require changes from sugar recipes

By Philip Breeze
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

The quest for the un-calorie never ends. As more types of artificial sweeteners appear in the grocery store, people are continuing to search for a way to have their cake without appearing to have eaten it too.

Barbara McLaurin, food and nutrition specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, said requests for information on how to prepare foods with artificial sweeteners increase every time a new sweetener hits the market.

"Most artificial sweeteners can be used according to the substitution chart on the package in recipes that do not require cooking," Mrs. McLaurin said.

But most artificial sweeteners lack the preservative qualities of sugar and are not appropriate for use in jams and jellies that rely on the sugar to retard spoilage.

"Preserves, marmalades, jams and jellies and the like made with artificial sweeteners have not actually been 'preserved' and they will need to be refrigerated," Mrs. McLaurin said.

Dr. Charles Shannon, food technologist with the Extension Service, said another shortcoming exists in the artificial sweetener, Aspartame.

"Aspartame, currently being marketed under the trade name NutraSweet, is not stable when subjected to heat. Cake and cookie recipes in which aspartame is substituted for sugar will not turn out satisfactorily. Sugar has bulk and crystallizing properties necessary in many recipes. The artificial sweeteners lack these properties," Shannon said.

Specific questions about using artificial sweeteners should be directed to the manufacturer, Mrs. McLaurin said.

"Manufacturers have all done extensive testing of their products," she said. "They want to make it easier for you to use their products and they will be more than happy to share the results of their kitchen tests with you."

More arrests expected in county drug bust

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Marijuana with a street value of $1.5 million dollars was doused with 300 gallons of diesel oil and burned at the Hancock County Dump Wednesday afternoon.

Three persons were arrested by federal authorities in connection with the marijuana confiscated at a Firetower residence on Saturday, according to Sheriff Ronald Peterson.

The 112 bales of Columbian marijuana weighing approximately 5,100 pounds, was transported from Texas via a U-Haul truck, Peterson stated.

"There will be more arrests forthcoming in the matter, and they are expected to be made within four or five days," Peterson emphasized.

Local authorities became involved on Saturday morning, when Peterson said he received a telephone call from Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) agents, seeking assistance. Peterson continued, "Then a search warrant was secured from J. Rubie Griffin, Circuit Court judge for the residence of Virginia Guilbeau on Firetower Road in Kiln."

"There were three subjects at the residence when it was searched by DEA agents and at the rear a rental truck was found containing approximately 5,000 pounds of marijuana," Peterson added.

Paul Rojas-Chao of Miami, Fla., alleged to be the driver of the truck, was arrested in a cottage at the rear of the Guilbeau home, Peterson said. He is in federal custody in Biloxi.

Ivan Martinez-Junco of Las Vegas, Nev., was arrested in a Slidell, La. motel and is in custody in New Orleans.

Alberto Llanos-Soto, a third subject, address unknown, was apprehended by DEA agents at the New Orleans International Airport on Tuesday, and he, too, is in custody in New Orleans.

"The marijuana was allegedly to be delivered to Gregory Ladner, son of Mrs. Guilbeau," Peterson reported.

Peterson added, "It is my understanding that DEA had been pursuing the case for about 30 days. The three arrested subjects are being handled by federal authorities."

"We have been working with the DEA agents in this case. Also on the local level other charges may stem from the seizure, as we have been working very close with Cono Caranna, district attorney," Peterson allowed.

Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics agents were also involved in the seizure.

Samples of the marijuana were taken by Mississippi Crime Lab officials before the weed was burned by Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics agents and Hancock County sheriff's officers on Wednesday.

"To lime or not to lime?" that is the question. You'll hear it asked everywhere by gardeners leaning on fences talking to other gardeners. Discussions go on, and the diggers with the puzzled looks are those who have not had their soil analyzed.

Oldtimers know that the soil's composition changes, and analysis advises them of what to do. New gardeners learn quickly that what you've got to plant in determines what you plant and how it fares. Soil analysis can be self-administered from kits you buy at the hardware store, or nursery, or plant center. Or, you can bag up a batch and take it to your county or state agricultural or extension service. Most charge a minimal fee; others will analyze for nothing. Do have it done — analysis will show your soil's composition and help you apply that famous rule: "If it ain't broke, don't fix it!"

Most soil is naturally acid and takes some lime to make it more productive. Testing will show if this is necessary, but in many cases, flowers, fruits and vegetables will flourish without lime. If it's needed, check with that same agent or a neighbor, and/or garden expert for the amount of lime required. Remember that most gardeners use too much; but not enough is almost as bad.

Four kinds of limestone are sold commercially, but ground is the kind most commonly used. Acidity is determined by the layers of rock, etc. that form the soil. A rule of thumb is to scatter 50 pounds of lime per thousand square feet of soil. Work it in now, and give another dressing to the fall after harvest.

Wear gloves and eye protection, as limestone is a caustic substance. Store it safely out of reach of children.

Change

the commissioners present unanimously recommended approval of a zoning change with the proviso that the property revert to single-family residential zoning if construction did not begin within six months.

Favre reported that petitions protesting the zoning change contained names of persons owning 26.42 percent of the property within a 160 foot radius of the subject Washington Street property.

And those persons, he said, represented 28.57 percent of the property owners within the 160 foot radius.

Consequently, Favre said, approval of the zoning change would require at least a 4-1 vote by council members.

Councilman Shelton Seuzeneau immediately moved that the application be denied and Councilman James Thriffley III seconded Seuzeneau's motion.

The motion carried 3-2, with Councilmen Seuzeneau, Thriffley and Harry Favre voting for and Councilmen Gary Griffin and Seymour voting against.

Applause followed the vote, and when the meeting adjourned immediately afterwards several citizens in attendance filed by the council members to shake their hands and thank them for their decision.

Developer Floyd Franks of Hattiesburg has an option to purchase the property on Washington Street near US-90 from the Elsie Chapin estate.

Last month Franks asked that the property be rezoned from single family residential (R-1) to multi-family residential (R-3) to allow construction of a 48-unit apartment complex financed through Farmers Home Administration.

Residents from the Washington/Seube Streets area protested, expressing concern that the project would increase traffic congestion, increase demands on city sewage and water systems, increase safety and security problems, decrease property values and attract undesirable residents to their neighborhood.

Mayor Larry Bennett said yesterday he will not veto the council's action.

Asked about his future plans, Franks said he has been ill for several days and was unable to attend Tuesday's council meeting.

"Quite frankly, I haven't even thought about what we're going to do," Franks said yesterday.

"It looks like we were turned down not on the merits of the project but for political reasons," Franks said.

"It's disheartening, because the people running the city are supposed to be making decisions based on the best interests of the city."

Franks said he had no alternative sites for constructing a complex in the Bay St. Louis area, saying the availability of locations for multi-family dwelling is scarce.

But Robert Genin of Favre, Genin and Scaffidi, the law firm which represents the Chapin estate heirs, indicated late yesterday afternoon that the controversy may not be settled.

Echoing Franks' sentiment that the council decision was a political one, Genin said "We are looking into the possibility of appealing the matter to the circuit court for judicial review."

'Mississippi: The Thirties' depicted in library exhibit

"Mississippi: The Thirties," an exhibit of photographs of Mississippi from the era of the Great Depression, will open on April 1 at City-County Public Library in Bay St. Louis, according to Prima Wusnack, library system director.

The exhibit will be on the Bay-Waveland Garden Club Pilgrimage tour, April 5, and will close on April 21.

The decade of the Great Depression was photographically documented by Farm Security Administration (FSA) workers who were assigned to record the depressed agricultural regions of America. The FSA, a New Deal project, was established to administer rural relief during the depression and the photography program was a segment of this project.

The complete FSA file of more than 140,000 photographs is housed in the Library of Congress. Of these, hundreds were taken in Mississippi, and 25 are shown in the exhibit.

Photographers represented are Walker Evans, Dorothea Lange, Russell Lee, Arthur Rothstein and Marian Post Wolcott.

Rothstein was the first photographer to be hired by the FSA and the first to come to Mississippi. The others followed, traveling to different parts of the state and recording with their cameras.

The public is invited to view the exhibit during library hours, Wusnack said.

You can always count on cabbage when you're cutting budget corners in the culinary department, can't you? And there's ever so much life after cole slaw for cabbage!

The other morning, after one of our group's pot luck suppers, I was left with a hollowed out head of cabbage, to which vestiges of a creamy, garlicky dip (for raw vegetables and crackers) still clung. Also on hand were the somewhat mangled insides left when I hollowed out the cabbage to make a handsome container for said dip—are you following this rambling discourse?

At any rate, I am far too frugal to discard the "makings" of any meal, so - this is what I did with that cabbage:

First, of course - the obvious - I chopped up the pieces left over when I carved up the head of cabbage, and made a quite good cole slaw, if I do say so myself.

Then I pried off some of the nice outer leaves, for cabbage rolls or stuffed cabbage. Then I reserved some more of the cabbage for quick-steaming with a bit of lemon butter, and was about to save more for "smothering" when I stopped to think that we were getting together the next day for lunch, so I might as well make a larger bowl of cole slaw.

Then I made the cabbage rolls - of course, you realize by this time that it was rather a huge head of cabbage and that I wasn't cooking too many batches - so, if you've a larger family to feed or such, you'll only make up one or two of these dishes - until you buy another cabbage or so!

At any rate, and it's high time, here's:

CABBAGE ROLLS

8 large outside leaves of cabbage

1/2 lb. ground beef
1 cup or perhaps a bit more, cooked rice

1 large onion, minced
1 clove garlic, minced
1 egg, beaten

8-oz. or more canned tomatoes
Pepper, hot peppers sauce, salt to your taste

Butter, as needed

First, gently, ever so gently so that you don't tear them, pull off the leaves from the head. Simmer the leaves in just a bit of boiling water, no more than an inch in depth, covered, for a very few minutes, no more than five or so. Drain well - I use my colander.

Then, saute the ground meat til brown, add the other ingredients except for tomatoes, and fill the leaves with the mixture. Roll the leaves up as you would a jelly roll (folding the sides over the mixture first) and, if you don't trust your rolling ability, secure with toothpicks.

Place it all in a greased heavy skillet, add the tomatoes and cover. Simmer for at least a half hour or so until the leaves are tender (or you may bake it all at 350 degrees for about an hour).

P.S. I almost forgot to tell you - carefully trim that thick center rib of the outside leaf of the cabbage - it makes the leaves much easier to roll, and as you fold the leaves over for filling, be very sure to tuck in the sides so that the filling won't come out during the cooking - use toothpicks for holders if you must. Alcan Cable continues to gear up for the District Tournament in Biloxi starting the evening of April 9. After playing Knights of Columbus, Alcan Cable journeyed to Hammond to score an easy 7-1 decision to bring its record to 5-1-2. This weekend Alcan Cable is on the road, playing the Slidell U-12 Select at 2 p.m., and on Sunday at 2 p.m. hosts Ocean Springs. The District Tournament will start at Milner Stadium in the evening of either April 9 or 10.

Dillmann Roofing had a 1-0 lead against Ocean Springs in the first half before the rains washed out the game. Dillmann Roofing will host Biloxi at Waveland Elementary School at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, and then play in the District Tournament in Pascagoula on April 14.

Black Tornados travel to Milner Stadium to play Gulfport at 10:30 a.m. on Saturday. District Tournament starts on April 7 in Ocean Springs.

Sea Coast Echo and Sports World played an exhibition game, and although Sports World won easily as expected Sea Coast Echo showed much improvement and had some scoring opportunities. Sea Coast Echo played an Ocean Springs Select team in Ocean Springs on Sunday and again lost, but the girls never quit. Wendy Sumler is rapidly improving as a goalkeeper. This Saturday Sea Coast Echo hosts Slidell U-12 Select at 2 p.m., and on Sunday at 2 p.m. hosts Ocean Springs. The District Tournament will start at Milner Stadium in the evening of either April 9 or 10.

Sports World hosted Singing River on Sunday and took the early lead in the first half on Kathy Kergosien's goal. Singing River came back in the second half to score on a perfect shot high in the net to gain a tie. The halfback line of Andrea Ambrose, Rachel Hays and Krissy Erickson and the usual outstanding goalkeeping of Melissa Duncan kept Singing River at bay and put pressure on its defense. Saturday Sports World will be at Milner Stadium for a 2:30 p.m. game against Gulfport, and then on Sunday at 3:30 p.m. will host Slidell U-14 Select. The District Tournament will be at Biloxi Stadium on April 14.

Job training for older people offered through Hancock center

A pilot project is underway in Hancock, Harrison and Jackson Counties to train older people to provide personal care to homebound or recovering individuals.

Eve McDonald, Hancock Senior Citizens Center director, says the purposes of the Personal Care Aide Training Project are to provide employment opportunities for people age 55 and older, and to make available to the public trained individuals who can function as companions, sitters, attendants, etc.

The program will give older workers, many of whom live on fixed incomes, an opportunity to upgrade their skills and become employed or re-employed. At the same time, the program will make available trained older workers to assist families, personal care homes, or nursing homes in caring for homebound, recovering, or bedridden individuals, McDonald reports.

The aides will be available for part-time or full-time work, with their hours and salary being negotiated with the employer, she says.

Training is provided free of charge at Jefferson Davis Junior College to persons age 55 and older who meet income eligibility criteria. Trainees may also be eligible for a small hourly stipend to help offset travel and expenses, McDonald reports.

The center director says the personal care aides will receive approximately 80 hours of training in such areas as basic human needs, personal care, basic health care skills, special procedures, nutrition, understanding disabling conditions, home safety, and job search skills.

The next two classes will begin April 23 and May 21. Plans call for training 50 personal care aides during the three classes. Tentatively, trainees will attend classes four days per week, five hours per day, for four weeks, she explains.

McDonald says some of the skills and topics included in the training are:

- Making occupied and unoccupied beds;

- Assisting patient in and out of bed;
- Giving partial and full bed baths;

- Oral hygiene, nail care, hair care;

- Measuring temperature, pulse, respiration and blood pressure;

- Measuring intake and output of fluids;

- Understanding hypertension, heart disease, diabetes, stroke, arthritis, cancer and Alzheimer's disease;

- Range of motion and therapeutic exercises;

- Home safety and fire prevention;

- Providing care for the terminally ill.

The center director says upon completion of the training, a pool of dependable, capable people will be available for a variety of job functions, including but not limited to:

- Companion, live-in, or sitter for elderly or other homebound or bed-ridden person;

- Attendant or aide for sick or recovering patient;

- Hospice or respite care provider;

- Nursing or personal care home attendant or aide;

- Child, adult or mental health day care worker, aide or attendant;

- Homemaker or chores provider.

This pilot project is a joint effort, funded under the Job Training Partnership Act, that includes the State Job Service offices, the Jefferson Davis Junior College, and the Southern Mississippi Area Agency on Aging, McDonald explains.

She advises persons interested in either becoming a personal care aide or employing an aide should contact the Hancock Job Service office or the County Office on Aging.

Both the office on aging and the job service will also be providing job placement assistance to trainees following the completion of training, McDonald adds.

In Hancock contact McDonald at 467-9292, and in Harrison County contact pat Cornelius at 868-2311, extension 243.

Fair Council chooses Bay group for Mississippi Pavilion shows

The Mississippi World's Fair Council reports that OLA Showstoppers of Bay St. Louis (Our Lady's Academy) have been selected to perform at the Mississippi Pavilion during the 1984 World's Fair in New Orleans.

From May 12 through

November 11 Mississippi's finest entertainers and craftsmen will be scheduled to perform in multiple staging areas to an international audience.

The 20,000 square foot pavilion will showcase Mississippi's outstanding contributions to all areas of the arts, industry, business and agriculture.

According to Carol Palmer, manager of performing arts, the group was selected by the screening committee of the council from hundreds of applications representing entertainers from across the state.

"Performers specializing in music, dance and drama were screened and selected on the quality of their performance through various forms of audition materials and this group represents Mississippi's finest entertainers," said Palmer. Applications for the performing arts program, Encore '84 are still being accepted and the screening procedures will continue until all applications have been evaluated. For more information on Mississippi's participation in the 1984 World's Fair, call toll-free, in-state, 1-800-962-1984.

Alcohol-drug unit names Hancock representative

Ms. Byrne Windham of Diamondhead has been named to the community and industrial relations staff of Bowling Green Inn in Mandeville, La., an alcoholism and drug abuse treatment hospital.

Dr. George Rozelle, executive director of the facility, said Windham, a certified alcoholism counselor, will serve as liaison between Bowling Green Inn and the Louisiana and Mississippi Gulf Coast areas as well as providing intervention counseling and other community and business services.

BYRNE WINDHAM

Windham's training includes Johnson Institute, Minneapolis, Minn.; clinical internship in a Baton Rouge, La. outpatient program; and numerous schools and conferences on alcoholism and drug dependency.

During the 1980-81 school year, Windham directed an alcohol and drug abuse awareness program for the Bay St. Louis Catholic School System.

In 1981, she made a presentation at the First World Conference on alcoholism and drug abuse in London, England.

Her topic was "Alcoholism—A Woman's Disease." For the past five years she has attended the Southeastern Conference on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse sponsored yearly by the American Medical Association in Atlanta, Ga.

A native of Houma, La., Windham has been in private practice in the chemical dependency field since 1980, specializing in intervention, individual and family therapy, with an emphasis on women and young people.

She is a consultant to various civic and church groups on the Gulf Coast.

"I'm really excited about this," Windham said. "I won't be giving up my private practice, just adding another dimension to it."

"It's a real privilege for me to be associated with what I believe to be one of the finest and most effective treatment programs of its kind," she said.

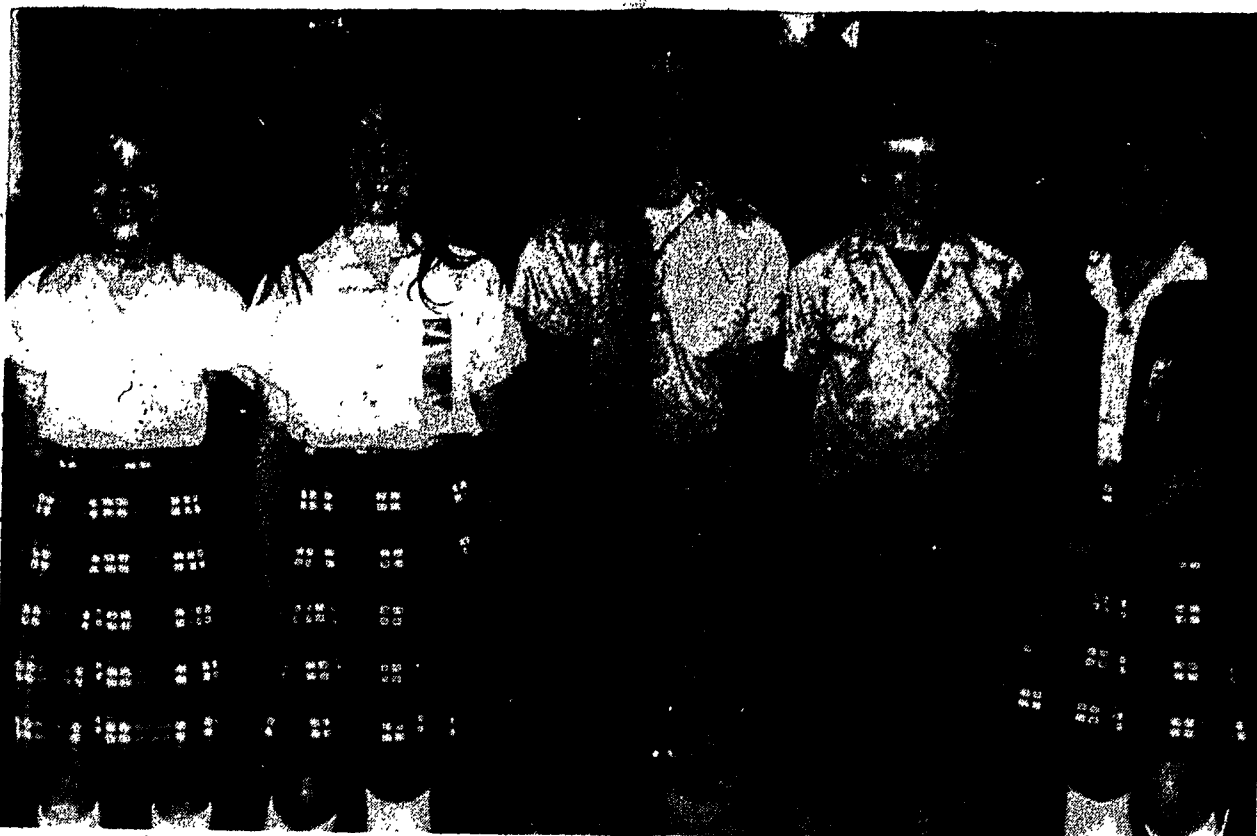

"Alcoholism and other drug dependency is the third largest killer in our country, behind heart disease and cancer, but formal intervention works in approximately 90 percent of the cases," she continued.

"Bowling Green Inn assists the chemically dependent person to accept treatment in a peaceful and serene environment. The program also provides caring treatment for families who have been devastated by this disease. Together they can and do get well," Windham stated.

Dr. Rozelle noted further, "Bowling Green Inn provides professional treatment that puts lives back together. Human potential shouldn't be kept bottled up."

According to Larry Rogers, director of community and industrial relations for Bowling Green, "Our recovery program works because we care about families and believe that together we can turn lives around."

Bowling Green Inn is approved by most group insurance plans. For free speakers, information about alcoholism and other drug abuse, or questions about the facility, call Windham at 864-7497 or toll free 1-800-432-0877.

Book Review

The University Press of Mississippi has announced a 1984 printing schedule which includes books by three University of Southern Mississippi professors.

"Conversations with Eudora Welty," edited by Peggy Whitman Preshaw; "Ambivalent Legacy: A Legal History of the South," edited by David Bodenhamer; and "Dilemmas of Change in British Politics," edited by Jerold Walman will be available from the University Press early this year.

"Conversations with Eudora Welty," is a collection of interviews which span the working career of one of the South's most well known writers. Among the 26 interviewers are notable literary figures such as William F. Buckley Jr.

"Ambivalent Legacy: A Legal History of the South," explores the role of the law and legal values in the development of culture and society in the South. Contributors to the volume include some of the best known scholars in American legal history.

"Dilemmas of Change in British Politics" brings together nine essays by American scholars examining the recent performance and prospect for change of major British governmental institutions. The book shows that the change-resisting features of British politics remain formidable.

Preshaw is the assistant dean of the USM Graduate School and a Professor of English. Bodenhamer is assistant to the vice president for academic affairs and a Professor of History. Walman is an associate professor of Political Science at USM.

We Sell The Nation's Most Efficient Fuel — Natural Gas.

We know natural gas.
It's our business.

We know that great changes are coming to this vital energy source. We know about the new end-use technology that is increasing energy recovery from the same old BTU content.

We know about it because we're part of it.

Time doesn't stand still. Neither does United Gas.

We manage the most strategic delivery system in the Gulf South. This company has crossed rivers and swamps and met the challenge of the Gulf of Mexico. We've laid more than 9000 miles of pipeline underground and undersea.

Our personnel comprise one of the most experienced organizations in the natural gas business. More than 50 years ago this company first brought natural gas to the Gulf South. In the process it has met and solved one problem after another. Now, with the same spirit and determination, we're working to lower costs and increase energy efficiencies.

Times are changing, but no matter how they change, some things remain unchanged: natural gas remains the nation's premium fuel, clean, efficient, non-polluting, the best energy you can buy. And United Gas remains the Gulf South's prime energy supplier.

The little something extra in your check usually proves to be another deduction.

Going for broke is the only way to travel these days.

A highly placed source is most likely to gossip sitting way up in the bleachers for whatever is going on.

When people take bad news well, it usually applied to someone else.

About all those piggy bank savings for vacation will buy these days is 20 minutes of airport visitors-deck telescope time.

Our bank has introduced a new service — a line to wait in while you're waiting for a line to wait in.

Why do most of us wind up on the end that hauls the load in the chain of command?

The trouble with making a list of priorities is that you almost never can decide which goes first so you can get on with the other things to be done.

Vo-tech center to serve Pass Christian schools

The Board of Trustees of the Pass Christian School District at its regular March session voted unanimously to request the city administration to issue notes totaling $371,338 for a joint project with the Long Beach School District and the Mississippi Gulf Coast Junior College district to construct a vocational center in the Long Beach Industrial Park.

The board action culminates many years of planning for the district. A vocational program designed to meet the needs of the students has been a number one priority for many years.

From the 1982-83 school year, the school district transported students to the junior college campus for vocational classes.

This arrangement provided the opportunity for the students to engage in vocational training courses such as bricklaying, carpentry, air conditioning/refrigeration.

However, as the larger school districts proceeded to develop their own programs, the number of high schools participating in the activities on the junior college campus decreased to the point where it was not economically feasible for the junior college to continue the program.

The students from the Long Beach School District and the Pass Christian School District were left without a program to serve their needs.

Both districts were too small to develop a single district program.

The two school districts, concerned about the lack of vocational opportunities for the students of their school districts, sought assistance and guidance from the State Department of Education.

Out of these contacts grew the idea that the goals could be achieved by the two districts joining together to provide services.

Following preliminary meetings between the two superintendents and the two school boards the decision was made to proceed with the project.

As currently planned the cost of construction will be borne equally between the two school districts and the junior college district.

The State Department of Education will also share in the cost of the structure.

The projected total for the cost of construction and land acquisition is $1,713,662. The school district's share of the cost has been calculated at $371,338.50.

The balance of the cost will be shared equally by the Long Beach School District, the Gulf Coast Junior College District, and the remaining $599,646.50 to be shared by the state and federal governments. The state will provide the equipment for the building.

The Harrison County Development Commission donated 14.1 acres of land in the Long Beach Industrial Park for the facility.

In addition, an additional 10 acres adjoining the site donated by the Development Commission was purchased by the consortium for future development and expansion of the vocational complex.

According to Pass Christian Municipal Separate School District Superintendent Leroy Lizana, the boards are scheduled to accept bids for the structure in May 1984. Construction is scheduled for completion in July 1985 with the first classes scheduled for August 1985.

Originally the three districts will share equally in the cost of operations. After the first year, the costs to the districts will be based upon the number of students from each district participating in the program.

As a result of a survey conducted by the junior college it was determined that the vocational curriculum would include the following areas for junior and senior high school students:

1. Intensive Business Training
2. Health Occupations
3. General Electricity/Electronics

4. Quantity Foods Preparation and Service
5. Metal Trades
6. Diversified Occupations Cooperative
7. General Drafting
8. Automotive Body and Frame Repair
9. Automotive Mechanics
10. Related Lab
11. Horticulture

The facility will be used by the junior college for post secondary and adult training when not used by the high schools.

The junior college courses will include:

1. Vocational Secretary - Computer Training/Repair
2. Medical Office Assisting
3. Industrial Electricity Electronics
4. Cook/Baking
5. Welding
6. Diversified Occupations Cooperative
7. Industrial Drafting
8. Automotive Body and Shop Management
9. Automotive Mechanics/Parts Management/Shop Management/Service Department

According to Lizana, the board passed a resolution requesting the mayor and board to issue $371,338 in short term notes.

Based upon the assessed valuation for the current school year a short term five year loan would require an increase of 1.10 mills in taxes. Lizana estimates that the principal on the loan would require .76 of a mill, and the interest .34 of a mill increase for a total millage for the project of 1.10 mills.

In other action the board:

—Approved the submission of an application to the State Department of Education for approval to begin offering a computer literacy course at the high school during the 1984-85 school term.

—Approved the request of the Pass Elementary School to allow the PTA to install playground equipment on the Pass Elementary campus.

—Approved the adoption of an order to offer 640 acres of 16th section land for oil, gas and mineral exploration and development.

Financial reports and bills were approved. Claims Docket of Bills included District Maintenance $41,977; Minimum Program $3,486; P.L. 94-142 $1,714; Cafeteria $33,556.

Special Bills included—Lowe's Painting and Sandblasting $2,700; Page Electric $1,821; Stuart C. Irby Company $1,646; Kenneth McKinney $189; Page Electric Co. $515; Nghiem Dedeaux $6; and Stuart Irby $74.

Payrolls for the month included—P.L. 94-142 $1,821.75; consortium $1,934.89; Minimum Program $110,753.26; District Maintenance $70,540.84; Chapter I $644.75; Student Activity $387.00; and Cafeteria $11,353.14.

St. Stanislaus participates in business simulation

St. Stanislaus High School students are participating in a business game hosted by the Center for Economic Education of the School of Management at Millsaps College in Jackson.

The Millsaps interscholastic business simulation competition is the first of its kind in Mississippi.

This competition, sponsored

Members of the St. Stanislaus team are Edmund Dunn, Kenny Johnston, Peter Merrifield, Vincent Schott and Frank Trudeau. Jim Thrift by the American Enterprise Center, involves ten Mississippi high schools divided into two "industry" groupings of five schools each so that school of similar sizes compete against one another.

filey and Brother Paul Mulligan were selected as consultants for the group by the American Enterprise Center.

The students are representing the management of a business firm, making such decisions as how many units to produce at what price, how much to spend on advertising and whether to invest in additional plant and equipment.

The decisions are then fed into the Millsaps computer, which analyzes them along with the decisions of other high school teams competing against them. The computer determines from these decisions the number of units sold, costs of selling them and other outcomes.

The financial statements and other measurements of performance are calculated by the computer so that each school knows how it performed relative to the others. Each team uses this feedback to make its next set of decisions.

The game will last until later this month when students travel to the Millsaps campus for the final decision. At that time the students will make a presentation to a panel of business leaders from the American Enterprise Center and will be honored with an awards banquet.

Ray Phelps, assistant professor of marketing at Millsaps, is director of the competition. The American Enterprise Center, in addition to providing the major portion of project funding, is selecting judges for the campus presentations.

ACHING JOINTS

Dr. Wm. L. POWELL

Many people associate pains in the body joints such as the fingers, wrists, elbows, or knees and feet, with arthritis, rheumatism or gout. They often mention how bad weather increases the aching. Weather changes to affect the pain level intensity by aggravating the body's temperature centers. These centers are responsible for adapting the internal body temperature to the outside environment. When such changes occur, it naturally affects all the normal parts of the body which you don't feel, but you do feel the changes in the abnormal parts, (aching joints). The application of Chiropractic care has been found to be quite effective in aiding recovery of those who suffer with aching joints.

Jackson museum exhibits children's art by Anderson

Walter Anderson, late Ocean Springs artist, created a multitude of drawings, paintings and prints for an audience of children.

Linoleum block prints, crayon and pencil drawings, and watercolors illustrating fairy tales, nursery rhymes, poems and other children's stories are abundant in the collections of the Walter Anderson Estate.

The Old Capitol Museum in Jackson, in cooperation with the Anderson family, has created an exhibit of these works with the young visitor in mind, with giant linoleum block prints (six feet tall), vibrant colors and lines full of motion.

Participatory activities, which can be arranged for groups and vary according to age, are designed to enhance the museum experience. Mural painting, storytelling, block printing demonstrations and question-and-answer sessions will be held in a special activity area.

"Water Anderson for Children" opened Sunday, March 25 with a presentation by Mary Anderson Pickard, Anderson's daughter, at 3 p.m. in the House of Representatives at the Old Capitol.

Scheduled to run through June 17, the exhibit is accompanied by a poster and activity book for children, both available in the Old Capitol Sales Shop.

Anderson, who died in 1965 at the age of 62, attended the Pennsylvania Academy as a young man. Although antagonized by the rigid constraints on his artistic style imposed by the academy, he won an award for his animal drawings there.

After studying in France on a grant, he returned to the Mississippi coast, married and continued with his art. In the late 1940s, he began making solitary trips to Horn Island, one of the Gulf Coast barrier islands, to study and paint the plants and animals found there.

He spent much of his last 20 years in solitude, either on the island or in his Ocean Springs cabin—reading, writing and creating his art in numerous media.

Considered an eccentric by many of his Ocean Springs contemporaries, Anderson is now lauded for his artistic genius and prolific output. "Walter Anderson for Children" will be on view seven days a week through June 17, and is free of charge to the public. Groups are welcome, but arrangements should be made in advance by calling 354-6222.

Artwork by Christ Episcopal Day School third graders patterned after Anderson's art is on display at the Hancock County Library in Bay St. Louis through March.

The word "volume" comes from the Latin word volvere, meaning "to roll," because in ancient times, books were written on sheets rolled on a pin or roller.

Elementary registration set for Bay, Waveland schools

Children pre-registering for school in Bay St. Louis and Waveland must have with them certified birth certificates and blue slips from the Health Department showing they have received certain required immunizations.

Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District Superintendent J.D. McCullough said pre-school registration for elementary school will be held May 1 from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the libraries at North Bay Elementary School and Waveland Elementary School.

No student will be able to register without a birth certificate and blue slip, he said. Students must be six years old on or before Sept. 1, 1984, he added.

McCullough said preschoolers, who must be accompanied by a parent or guardian, will register and

Louis to make sure blue slips are completed before May 1. return home after being screened for speech, vision and hearing.

General information needed at registration includes:

- Parent's name, address and phone number;
- Child's place of birth;
- Parent's place of employment, business address and phone number;
- Name of community in which family resides;
- Two emergency telephone numbers; and
- Name of kindergarten child attended, if any;

McCullough suggested parents check now to make sure they have certified birth certificates for their children and not copies.

Parents should also go to the Hancock County Health Department office in Bay St.

Further information about school registration is available from North Bay Principal Roger James, 467-4757, or Waveland Elementary Principal James Baldree, 467-6630.

IT'S A FACT

Mississippi Power Company generates over 95% of its electricity by using coal from Alabama, Colorado, Illinois, Kentucky, and Utah. About 4% is from natural gas. Less than 1% from fuel oil. None of our electricity is generated by using nuclear power.

In Southeast Mississippi the name's Mississippi Power. And that's all there is to it.
